THOUSANDS CHEER CANDIDATES

Our Town

By J. B. White

Faith in America and in ourselves was the real text of an inspiring address by Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, before the thirty-eighth annual dinner of the Indiana Bankers' Association. Like other recent expressions of the country's leading writers on commerce and finance, Thorpe conveyed a warning to business not to overdo an attitude of gloom. With faith regained, he said, "there will be a normal exchange of what each has to offer the other in this complex and vital modern society. And thrift, sacrifice, and good judgment will not be penalized for the slothful ne'er-do-well and the irresponsible."

"We Americans," declared Mr. Thorpe, "are impetuous and impatient, and above all, emotional. Our memories are so short. Only 5 years ago other nations were sending commissions, private and official, to study and report. And may I recall to you their findings?"

These, he said, were that, with only 7 per cent of the earth's population, the United States has more purchasing power than all Europe combined; has created and owns more than half the world's wealth; consumes half the world's coffee, half of its tin, half of its rubber, one-fourth of its sugar, two-thirds of its crude petroleum, and three-fourths of its silk. With only 6 per cent of the earth's acreage, this country was harvesting more than half of the world's foodstuffs; it extracts 60 per cent of its minerals; has developed and uses nearly half of its railways and electrical energy, and on its 600,000 miles of paved highways operates 92 per cent of the entire output of automobiles.

"After all," remarks B. C. Forbes, in a financial editorial in the Hearst newspapers, "the responsibility for bringing about better times rests just as heavily upon business leaders as upon President Roosevelt. It is the duty of every employer, of every responsible citizen, to make the best of unalterable facts and conditions, and to exert every effort to keep the country going in the right direction economically and employment-wise."

Sam Hefley Improves In Temple Hospital

Sam Hefley, former member of the legislature and widely known citizen, is reported improved. He has been in Kings Daughters Hospital in Temple for the past several weeks and has had two operations. He is up and able to be about the building. Treatment will continue. Mr. Hefley is expected to return to his home in a few days.

Resume Airmail Link

The two Americas were once more united by airmail when the new route from Brownsville to Dallas was inaugurated. The first Long and Harman plane to leave Brownsville is shown. Left is Charlie Stewart, assistant postmaster of Brownsville, who hands the mail to Lee Maudlin of Long and Harman. The bag contains airmail from Latin America. (Texas News Photos.)

H. B. McCLELLLEN FOR TREASURER OF COUNTY

H. B. McClellen, tax assessor for Milam county, and well known public official, is a candidate for County Treasurer, subject to the Democratic Primary Election to be held on Saturday July 28, 1934.

Definite announcement that he would be a candidate for this office was made Tuesday when Mr. McClellen released for publication his formal entry into the race. He is the fifth candidate for - treasurer. For several years Mr. McClellen has been tax assessor for Milam county and has given the people a faithful and efficient administration of the affairs of this office. He feels that his experience in this office gives him qualifications extraordinary for the place. Mr. McClellen points out that he would be able to transact all the duties of the office without the necessity of employing help.

In making his announcement, Mr. McClellen extends his thanks to a large number who have pledged their support to him in the campaign. He is grateful to his many friends for their tender of support and is deeply grateful for the endorsement. (See McCLELLLEN on page 4)

MISS IRMA H. PORTER FOR SUPERINTENDENT

Miss Irma H. Porter, for seven years principal of the Ada Henderson School in Cameron and widely known teacher and educator, is a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Milam county subject to action of the Democratic Primary election to be held on Saturday July 28, 1934.

Announcement that she would be a candidate for the nomination at the July primary election, was made at Gause on last Friday night and her announcement was released to the newspapers Tuesday. Her announcement has been received with interest in all sections of the county. Miss Porter expressed her appreciation for the many who have tendered her support in the campaign. She appreciates the aid of her friends and is grateful for the encouragement that has come to her in recent days. Her announcement was held in abeyance until she had completed her school year in Cameron. She felt she owed the time to the school and did not break away until she had completed the job. This she declares was discharging her obligations to her employers, the Cameron school board.

Miss Porter is a native of Milam County, was born and reared at Rockdale. She spent eleven years of her school teaching experience at Rockdale. Miss Porter has a record unique in many ways. She has never been an applicant for a place as instructor. Always the place has sought her and she has always voluntarily retired from any place she has held and her services have been widely sought.

She has been principal of the Ada Henderson school for 7 years and under her supervision have been 14 teachers. In 1934 there were 575 pupils and in 1933 there were 637. It is the largest school in Milam county.

Joe Cahill Did Not Sign Retraction On School Statement

In the last issue of The Herald was published a statement of retraction of a former statement published in connection with a controversy over the transfer of Burlington school children from Rosebud to Cameron. On the original statement appeared the name of Joe Cahill, prominent Burlington merchant. He did not sign the retraction statement as published last week and the Herald makes this correction in his behalf. It was an error on our part that his name appeared on the retraction. Mr. Cahill on the contrary declined to sign the statement published last week.

Bonnie's Mother and Sister United Again

It was a tearful but happy reunion for Mrs. Billie Mace (left) sister of Bonnie Parker, and her mother, Mrs. Emma Parker, when Mrs. Mace and Floyd Hamilton were cleared of charges of killing two highway patrolmen near Grapevine on Easter Sunday. Ballistics experts say that Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker shot the two officers, and Mrs. Parker, one daughter dead, is happy that her other daughter is free. (Texas News Photos.)

"Little Man, What Now?" With Big Star Cast Featuring Margaret Sullivan Will Open At Cameron Theatre Sunday June 10

Margaret Sullivan, still afraid of her screen shadow, has run away again. This time it is from "Little Man, What Now?" and she has put the Atlantic ocean between it and herself.

Margaret Sullivan is a sure prophet of the pictures in which she appears; but in reverse. When she finished "Only Yesterday," she ran away to New York and she frankly told interviewers and anyone who would listen to her, that the picture was terrible, and that she was terrible in the picture. Everyone knows how utterly wrong she was, just exactly one hundred per cent wrong. The picture was wonderful and Margaret Sullivan was wonderful in it.

Now comes "Little Man, What Now?" Miss Sullivan is starring in this picture which comes to the Cameron Theatre Sunday and Monday June 10 and 11. The last camera had scarcely finished grinding when Margaret Sullivan hopped a plane for New York. This unique star immediately went into hiding, but on the telephone she frankly admitted that "Little Man, What Now?" was far worse than "Only Yesterday" and that she was far worse in it than she was in "Only Yesterday." That was the most reliable tip-off on how marvelous "Little Man, What Now?" really was. The last doubt, if there were any, was removed. The expert had spoken. "Little Man, What Now?" is a huge and universal success.

True to form, Margaret Sullivan wasn't around when "Little Man, What Now?" was first shown. She was in England. She left, incognito, as far as possible, on to Paris.

But Miss Sullivan is doomed to disappointment. Even in England she is the terrific success that she is in this country.

SALESMAN DIES AT WHEEL OF CAR NEAR MAYSFIELD

The body of H. G. Green, 50, traveling salesman, was taken from his automobile late Tuesday afternoon east of Maysfield on the Hearne road. Justice John Thweatt of Maysfield said in his verdict that death resulted from natural causes.

Mr. Green stopped at Maysfield and asked that a doctor be summoned from Hearne to meet him as he was feeling bad. He then started on his way. The machine was found in a field near the highway. It is believed that Mr. Green died at the wheel and the car, unguided, left the road.

The body was brought to Cameron in a Leland Green ambulance and prepared for burial and was shipped to Brenham. Deceased was not married.

NRA Merchants Listed In Statement Issued By County Administrator

W. I. Clark, administrator for the Texas Relief Commission in Milam County, has released and requested publication of a communication from G. G. Lennard, secretary Local Food and Grocery Code Authority of Waco, setting forth reasons why disbursing orders cannot be honored if turned in by Merchants who have no right to display the Blue Eagle.

Mr. Clark issued a warning to merchants that he cannot, under orders from the Government, approve disbursing orders on merchants who are not NRA. Mr. Clark has no option in the matter. Only NRA merchants will be permitted to receive federal funds on relief money.

The following letter from Mr. Lennard is submitted by Mr. Clark, and thereafter follows the list of NRA grocery merchants in Milam county who are eligible to handle disbursing orders:

Waco, Texas.

Dear Sir:
Enclosed herewith please find a complete list of those who have paid (See NRA on page 4)

BICKETT NAMED JUDGE TO SUCCEED W. S. FLY

John W. Bickett, Jr., San Antonio attorney, has been appointed chief justice of the court of civil appeals at San Antonio by Governor Ferguson to succeed Judge William S. Fly, deceased.

Mr. Bickett was born and reared in Cameron and the son of John H. Bickett, popular sheriff of Milam county for many years and former member of the Highway Commission of Texas. The newly named Judge is a prominent young Democratic leader and was permanent chairman of the State Democratic Convention at Lubbock in 1932.

Judge Fly, who died last week in San Antonio, was named to the court by the late Governor James S. Hogg. He was a noted jurist. His successor, Judge Bickett is well equipped and according to T. S. Henderson of Cameron, one of the leading bar members in Texas.

PARTY PROGRAM IS SUCCEEDING IN CO.

Candidates speaking under the auspices of the Democratic Executive Committee have been greeted by thousands of voters during the past week.

The largest crowd of the campaign greeted the candidates at Thorndale on Tuesday night. The American Legion and the Thorndale Band gave the entertainment and Mayor V. F. Norris, publisher of the Thorndale Champion assisted in the arrangements. The main street was reserved for the rally.

Loud speaking equipment was necessary to reach the crowd. Zeke Brod of Cameron has contracted with the Committee to furnish this equipment. J. B. White, Chairman of the Executive Committee, introduced the candidates. Thorndale and her citizens were being praised on every hand for their hospitality on the occasion.

An important rally was held at Gause on Friday night June 1 with more than a thousand attending. Committeeman Allen Varner had charge of arrangements. Candidates and visitors praised the good arrangements, the supper and the hospitality of that splendid little city.

Tuesday night June 12 the candidates speak at Vogelsang. On Friday night June 15 they speak at Sharp.

Under the 1934 program candidates are speaking to larger crowds and have avoided the necessity of every night suppers. Candidates have been asked to co-operate with the committee, and co-operation has been good. It was believed certain that if candidates continue to attend entertainments where no speakings are scheduled by mid June they will have lapsed back to the old system with the strain and financial costs of other years.

PENN WOLF CANDIDATE FOR DISTRICT CLERK

Penn Wolf, District Clerk for Milam County, is a candidate for re-election to that place, subject to the Democratic Primary election to be held on Saturday July 28, 1934.

In his announcement for re-election Mr. Wolf expresses his appreciation to the people of Milam County for their support and is deeply grateful to his many friends for their interest in his campaign for re-election based upon his impressive record of good service to the people and pledges himself to render the same service that has characterized his administration of this office. It is generally recognized that no District Clerk in Texas has rendered more faithful, economical or efficient service than has Mr. Wolf.

His many friends point with pride to his record. At no time has he employed extra help, thereby entailing extra burdens to the tax payers, but on the contrary has done the work himself and turned back into the treasury all excess fees.

Mr. Wolf believes that a public office is a high public trust and that it is the duty of the incumbent to at all times be considerate of the tax payers. (See WOLF on page 4)

Texan Honored

Here is Peter Molyneux, widely known editor of the Texas Weekly, who has been elected a trustee of the Carnegie endowment for international peace. The $10,000,000 fund is administered by trustees, elected for life, including many men of national prominence. (Texas News Photos.)

CLINT SMALL WILL SPEAK HERE JUNE 13

Clint Small, State Senator from Wellington, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, will speak in Cameron Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

He will be introduced by Hon. Bill Morrison, city attorney. Mr. Morrison is directing the Small campaign in Milam county. The senator two years ago fell short of the run-off by only a few thousand votes. He is strongly supported in west Texas.

The voters are urged to attend the rally and hear Senator Small discuss his campaign.

DR. J. W. TORBETT TO SPEAK AT METHODIST CHURCH ON SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 10

Dr. J. W. Torbett of Marlin will be the Lay Speaker here Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at the First Methodist church. The Methodist church has set aside the second Sunday in June as Layman's Day and all churches are expected to have lay-speakers at one or both services. Dr. Torbett's subject will be "The Clarion Call of Today for Men and Women."

Candidates To Speak at Vogelsang Tuesday Night June 12th

Milam County Candidates running for Democratic nominations in July will speak at Vogelsang on Tuesday night, June 12.

The women of the church will serve a sausage supper beginning at 6 p. m. and the people have been cordially invited to attend. All candidates are asked to attend the rally and take supper with the committee sponsoring the entertainment.

Beginning at 8 p. m. the candidates will speak. The program is arranged under the auspices of the Democratic Executive Committee. Large crowds have attended the meetings thus far.

Miss Lena Belle Baskin Becomes Bride Of Gill DeWitt Of Houston In Impressive Church Ceremony Here Monday Evening

An early twilight ceremony Monday evening June 4th at 6:30 at the First Methodist church, marked the culmination of a romance begun several years ago while at college when Miss Lena Belle Baskin, daughter of Mrs. Howard Baskin, became the bride of Gill DeWitt of Houston. Rev. King Vivian, president of the Southwestern University, Georgetown, read the ring ceremony.

Church Decorations.

The church was in floral dress with tall cathedral candles that shed mellow light, stood at either end of the altar, tall pedestal baskets filled with choice summer flowers, intermingled with handsome plumosa ferns.

Assembly of Attendants.

Ushers were W. C. Landry, T. C. Word, Houston; Fred Sterling, Conroe; Montague Triggs of Cameron, who ushered the guests and seated the bridal party inside tulle bowed pews. A green and yellow effect was seen in the grouping of the attendants. Miss Bonnell Neisast was attired in green, Miss Harriett Flinn in yellow, Miss Sue Griffin Webb of Morehead City, N. C. was in green, Miss Marguerette Meekins of Houston in yellow. Matron of honor, Mrs. W. H. Baskin was in yellow, Mrs. Clyde Baskin, maid of honor, sister of the bride, was in green, all wearing large picture hats and carrying arm bouquets. All dresses were floor length and of platinum organdie.

Wedding Music.

Miss Billie Gaither was at the organ and played the accompaniments for Mrs. A. J. Triggs, who sang "At Dawning," and Mrs. D. H. Hanna of Houston who sang "Because." During the ceremony "Thais" was played softly by Miss Gaither.

Entrance of Bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Howard Baskin, who came in on his arm to the strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March. She was attired in white angel skin lace made in empire lines, short train, wore a coronet hat and carried white lilies. She was met at the altar by the bridegroom and best man, C. J. DeWitt, father of the groom, leaving the altar to the Mendelssohn wedding march.

The bride received her degree at Southwestern University, is a member of the Delta, Delta, Delta, sorority, and has a large circle of college friends over the state. She changed her wedding dress for an ensemble of figured crepe with brown accessories for her going away dress.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. DeWitt of Houston, was head yell leader at State the past term and is a Phi Delta Theta, and popular on the campus at State.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt left soon after the ceremony for points in South Texas, and afterward will go to Houston where they will make their home.

Stone Garner is recovering from a severe case of measles.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Vacation Bible School started at the First Methodist church Monday morning June 4th and will continue for two weeks. Mrs. Roy Baskin has charge, assisted by Miss Mollie Moore. The school opens at 8 o'clock in the morning and closes at 11 o'clock with no classes in the afternoon.

Owing to many children being exposed to measles the attendance is not as large as heretofore.

Patricia Batte, who has been ill with measles, is improving nicely.

FOR SEVENTH GRADE

Mrs. Roy Law entertained Tuesday night in honor of her son Charles Roy Law and his classmates of the seventh grade of the Ada Henderson grammar school.

Out of door games and stunts were the diversion of the evening. Assisting Mrs. Law were: Mrs. Julian Baskin, Mrs. Grady Cooper, Mrs. Lena White, Miss Blanche Hensley. Closing the evening ice punch was served.

Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Love have returned from a three weeks visit.

for new and better refrigeration the Coolerator

only the COOLERATOR

has the efficient under-the-ice circulation . . .

A patented and exclusive process that makes for better refrigeration, assuring constant cold at all times at the lowest possible cost.

A NEW KIND OF REFRIGERATION

In other makes of ice refrigerators the air from the food chamber is taken up over the top of the ice and the cooling is accomplished by use of the four sides and top of the ice cake.

In the Coolerator only the under side of the cake is exposed and through the use of the patented Coolerator fin rack the ice melts down in long fingers, giving extra cooling surface.

For this reason the ice in the Coolerator melts only from the bottom and leaves the top of the cake practically flat so that a new block of ice can be slid in on top of the old one.

The Coolerator gives the same temperature in the food chamber whether the ice chamber is full or nearly empty. In the electric refrigerator there is the circulation of dry, stale air filled with the gases and odors given off by the foods in an almost air-tight chamber.

The gases and odors are absorbed by the water that makes the ice cubes. In the Coolerator, these gases and odors are absorbed by the water from the melting ice and carried away down the drain pipe without doing any harm.

their assessment into this office and are fully qualified NRA merchants under the Food & Grocery Code. All others in your county are not NRA merchants, notwithstanding the have the Old Blue Eagle in their stores which Eagle was given to them under the General Code.

This General Code was an emergency to hold every one in line until a Code could be set up governing their own particular line of business. This was done last October for the Food and Grocery Distributors and became effective on Jan. 6th, 1934.

Those merchants in towns under 2500 population are exempt from the provisions of the Code in that it is not compulsory upon them. But they cannot fly the Blue Eagle and enjoy any of the benefits of the NRA unless they volunteer to pay their assessments and come under the Code.

Administrators in all our counties are cooperating with us to the fullest and we certainly appreciate it, and any time we can be of service to you command us.

Yours truly,
G. C. LENNARD,
Secretary Local Food & Grocery Code Authority

"Now I'm the Picture of Health," Says Lady

• After Taking CARDUI

Here is how Cardui helped an Alabama lady. . . "I suffered from pains in my back and sides," writes Mrs. A. G. Gray, of Cumeta, Ala. "I was so thin and weak, I read of Cardui and decided to take it. I noticed at once it was helping me. I kept taking Cardui until I had finished five bottles. I gained. My health was much better. Now I am the picture of health. My color is good and my weight increased." . . . Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

payers. Because of his consideration for economical and efficient operation of the office he has done much more work than would ordinarily be expected of him. His popularity as an official and citizen has been enhanced by reason of his record and consideration for all who contact his office.

The duties of District Clerk are both exacting and important. They require training and special understanding. Mr. Wolf has been complimented many times by high state officials on his record and knowledge.

Mr. Wolf is a Democrat, loyal and true. He is asking for the nomination as a Democrat and is well pleased with the enthusiasm shown by the people in the campaign program mapped out by the Executive Committee for the county. He hopes to be able to speak at all the places designated, but respectfully asks the people to take into consideration any possibility that might require attendance in court. Mr. Wolf regards his duties as paramount and will always be found transacting the business of the office. In the event he is unable to see and talk with each voter he takes this opportunity to thank them and to ask their vote and support on July 28.

Mr. Wolf plans to make as active campaign as his duties in court will permit. To his many friends he sends a personal word of greeting and assures them that he holds their friendship and support sacred and will consider his re-election as an obligation which he would discharge in a way fully commensurate with the responsibilities of the office.

Born and reared in Milam County, Mr. Wolf has a wide acquaintance and the esteem and good will of a host of friends and neighbors. Possessing unusual qualifications for the office he seeks, Mr. Wolf offers to the people all the qualities of an ideal candidate. His friends point to his record as proof of the wisdom of their support and he has always shown his appreciation by rendering a service that justifies their continued confidence.

Mr. Wolf assures one and all that their support is appreciated and he trusts that opportunity will be given him to see each one and thank them personally.

PORTER

training at Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee, where she earned her B. A. Degree. At this college she majored in education. Her courses of study took into consideration all phases of education and its application in the rural schools. She took special courses in supervision and as to duties of principals. Miss Cage, one of the outstanding instructors in Peabody was also president of the National Primary Association. Miss Porter took all of the courses she gave, one course being the Little Country School House, a special course, which took into consideration the mastery of rural education, equipment, arrangements, teaching and all phases of the work.

Her major work as a teacher has been with the 6th and 7th grades. One thing advocated by Miss Porter that has attracted attention is her proposal to make manual training available in the rural schools. At the Ada Henderson school she teaches this subject and the wood work shop of the school is one of the outstanding features of the entire system.

Miss Porter feels that she is well qualified for the place because her life work has been in preparation for this promotion. She points out that she has succeeded to the highest position any woman may attain in Milam county in school teaching and based upon her belief that she can serve the people, is asking this advancement.

She will make an active campaign but in the event she cannot see and talk to voters in every section, she takes this opportunity to ask their support and that her friends everywhere lend their active co-operation. She pledges the best efforts her exceptional qualifications make available to the people, and assures each one their vote and support will be greatly appreciated.

McCLELLAN

couragement he has received for this office.

Mr. McClellan announced from the speakers platform at Thorndale on Tuesday night. He plans to make an active canvass for this office, to see and talk with the voters about his race and discuss with them his qualifications. Mr. McClellan feels that because of his experience his candidacy offers to the people an opportunity to select a treasurer well qualified for the place.

Mr. McClellan as assessor for taxes in Milam county has had the support of the people. He voluntarily retired from this office effective on January 1, 1935 when his present term expires. The offices are combined under terms of an amendment to the Texas constitution.

As a veteran of the World War Mr. McClellan saw active service with the expeditionary forces in France. He was wounded in action and as a result suffered serious impairment to his left hand. He is a member of the Disabled Veterans Association and a Legion member.

Mr. McClellan is a native of Milam county. He is too well known to require an introduction. He commands a large friendship in all sections of the county and for this esteem he is deeply grateful. He feels deeply obligated to the people for their kind consideration of him in the past and because of his desire to be of service he offers as a candidate for the office of County Treasurer. He is a Democrat and seeks the office as a Democrat, asking for their nomination in the July Primary.

He assures each voter in advance of his appreciation for their support and pledges them and the entire people his best efforts to render an efficient service such as has characterized his administration in the office of tax assessor. Anything his friends may do in his behalf will be greatly appreciated.

FATHER GEO. APEL WILL LEAVE SOON FOR EUROPE

Rev. Geo. Apel, pastor of St. Monica's will leave Cameron on Thursday June 14 to New York City and will sail for Europe on June 19th.

He has been given a leave of absence by Bishop Byrne of Galveston. Father Apel will take a well deserved vacation. He served his parish well and may now go away for the needed rest. Among his achievements is beautiful St. Monica's church.

Father Apel will go to Germany, his native country. He will see the Passion Play and also visit the battlefields. He expects to be away for about three months.

In his absence Father H. Schroeder of Westphalia will look after the parish. The entire city wishes Father Apel a pleasant voyage and a profitable stay in Europe.

Improves Bedroom At Cost of $2.12

"Where there is a will, there is a way," according to Mrs. W. D. Bales, bedroom demonstrator for the Friendship Club. "There was no ceiling in my room, so I took scrap lumber and cardboard boxes and used for the ceiling, over this I papered," says Mrs. Bales. "The closet with shelves, rod for hanging clothes and shoe rack was made from the same material. The dressing table and flower stand were made from apple boxes and willow branches." The total cost of improvement including paper, paint, curtains, sheets and material for floor finish was $2.12.

Niley Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Niley Smith, has returned from Schriener Institute where he attended school the past term. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were present for the closing exercises, and their son accompanied them home.

Bobby Casey who was seriously injured in an automobile accident a few weeks ago, is recovering much to the delight of his many friends.

Doomed Man Baptized

Under sentence of death for his part in the famous Handley triple "ditching" murder, W. D. May is pictured here just before being baptized in a bathtub in the Tarrant County jail. The Rev. Almer Kelly, Ellis county Baptist preacher, who is pictured with him, dipped May under the water. May said it was the happiest day of his life. (Texas News Photos.)

Car Load Coolerator Refrigerators Sold By Company In City

A carload of Coolerator Refrigerators the latest and most modern ice refrigerator for the home, have been received by the Cameron Ice & Cold Storage Company.

The Coolerator has found popular favor in homes in Cameron and this section. Hayden Lawrence in charge of the sales, says he is greatly pleased at the reception given the new refrigerator which is iced every 5 days and is the most economical refrigerator known.

They are finished in porcelain and other similar construction and resemble the electric box. This week a big shipment was received. Mr. Lawrence is having difficulty supplying the demand. They are popular priced boxes and with ice selling at 40c per hundred refrigeration can be had around $2.50 per month.

Black-Draught Brings Refreshing Relief of Constipation Troubles

Constipation produces many disagreeable sensations, several of which are mentioned by Mr. T. E. Smith, of Boonville, Ind., who writes: "I have used Thedford's Black-Draught many years when needed for biliousness and other minor ills when a laxative was needed. I have a tight feeling in my chest when I get bilious. I get dizzy and feel very tired. Just don't feel like doing my work. After taking Black-Draught, I feel much better. This is why I continue to use it when needed." Thedford's Black-Draught is a good, purely vegetable laxative, obtainable for 25c a package.

Come in and go over the entire mower. You'll agree that you have never seen anything like it.

McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower

WE are anxious to have all of our friends see the New McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower. We think it is one of the finest pieces of farm equipment we have ever sold!

Everybody who has seen it says they never had any idea that a mower could be built as this one is.

For example: The entire operating mechanism, including drive gears, differential, and countershafts, is assembled compactly in an oil-tight gear housing and runs in a bath of oil. There are four high-grade roller bearings. Operation is so smooth and noiseless that you can scarcely hear the light hum of the sickle!

Special oil seals at the ends of the main axle and fly-wheel shaft, and the oil-tight gear box prevent leakage and protect all working parts against the entrance of dirt and other abrasive materials. Floating action of cutter bar provides ample play without disturbing knife registration.

W. H. PRUETT, DEAD

William Pruett, 88, died at his home in Cameron Sunday morning, June 3, at 10:30 o'clock after a lingering illness of several weeks. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the First Methodist church at 4 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Cannan, assisted by Rev. N. D. Timmerman of the First Baptist church. Burial was made in Oak Hill cemetery.

Mr. Pruett was born in the state of Alabama and came to Texas in 1851 and to Milam county in 1872. He was married to Miss Agnes Naomi Mitchell May 6, 1871. To this union were born nine children, four of whom are living, M. H. Pruett, Ballinger; J. T. Pruett, Rockdale; H. H. Pruett and Mrs. Leona West, Cameron.

Mr. Pruett joined the Methodist church in early manhood and for 40 years preached in the rural churches of Milam County. Before he was 16 years old he joined the Southern army and saw service the entire 4 years of the war.

Up to a short time before he was taken ill he had taken active interest in his community and was a familiar figure at the quarterly meetings of the Salty singing conventions. He enjoyed a large circle of friends.

Surviving him are his wife, four children, 19 grand children and 86 great grand children.

Pall bearers were: Johnnie Cherry, Douglas Pruett, H. Pruett, Pickney Pruett, Dupree Pruett and Willie Pruett.

BYRON HUGHES BURIED IN LIBERTY CEMETERY

Byron Debbis Hughes, 27, who lay critically injured in Cameron Hospital for more than a week from injuries received when an automobile ran over his body, died at 12:30 p. m. on Friday, June 1, 1934. His condition, critical from the beginning, grew worse on Thursday and the end came just after noon on the following day.

Mr. Hughes received his injuries when a car which he had cranked ran over him. His neck was broken and the spine was broken in several places. His strength and courage gave him life for several days, but the end came an inevitable result.

Funeral services were held at Liberty cemetery by Rev. W. L. Cannan of the First Methodist church in Cameron, assisted by Rev. O. C. Acree of the First Presbyterian church of Cameron. Interment was made in Liberty Cemetery with Coleman Funeral Home directing arrangements.

Byron Debbis Hughes was born at Milano in Milam county, October 7, 1907, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hughes of Cameron. He was educated in the Cameron public schools. He was popular with a large circle of friends who join the family in sorrow at his untimely death.

He is survived by his parents and five brothers as follows: Grady, Wayland, Maurice, Ray and Stanley Hughes, all of Cameron.

Old Home Burned Was Built By W. V. Hefley

The old Hefley home destroyed by fire recently was built by W. V. Hefley many years ago. In a published account of the destruction of this home by fire last week, the name of John M. Hefley was given as the builder. On the contrary the home was built by William Vance Hefley, early pioneer.

Miss Willie V. Hefley of Cameron was named for the pioneer and the publishers are indebted to the family for this correct information. The old home was an early day seat of Southern hospitality. The Hefley family is prominent in the history of Milam County.

PECAN GROWERS WILL MEET HERE JUNE 12TH

Pecan growers in Milam county are invited to attend a meeting in Cameron Court House Tuesday afternoon June 12 at 2 o'clock.

T. S. Henderson, for years active in promoting interest in pecan growing, has received a letter from A. W. Jones of the State Department of Agriculture asking an opportunity to address the pecan growers.

Mr. Jones will also address a meeting of growers at Rockdale at 10 a. m. on the day of June 12, coming to Cameron in the afternoon.

The speaker is well prepared to discuss the subject with growers and to give them information on how to obtain better markets.

Mr. Henderson is anxious that all pecan growers and those interested in this important Texas industry, attend the meeting.

Tragic Tales of Double-Log Cabin

By R. K. PHILLIPS
Weatherford, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

THE log cabin to the settler was both home and fort—affording protection against marauding Indians and shelter against unfavorable weather.

There were three types of frontier cabins, the most primitive the single log cabin of only one room. Next was the one-room cabin with "lean to" in the rear, the latter not so well built as the cabin itself, but useful. However, the aristocrat of pioneer architecture was the double-log cabin. Usually this was a two-room structure with a hallway between, all under one roof. Sometimes the hallway was puncheon floored, sometimes just an opening between the two rooms. Cracks between logs were "daubed" with clay.

G. A. Holland of Weatherford, Texas, has reproduced a typical double-log cabin at Holland's Lake, southeast of that city, by combining two single cabins, famed in the early history of Parker county. The logs comprising these two cabins were among the first to be cut and hewn in West Texas. One of the cabins, built in 1860, still shows where openings between logs were made through which rifles were thrust to fire upon attacking warriors. Marks of bullets fired by Indians deface doors and walls; also, bloodstains of defenders, either killed or wounded, are yet visible on the floors. These cabins were originally known as the McClesky and the Waggoner, or Muleshoe Ranch headquarters. The cabins were removed from their original sites, in Parker county, to Holland's Lake near Weatherford.

Muleshoe Ranch Headquarters

In 1855, Dan Waggoner, a pioneer cattleman and father of Tom Waggoner of Arlington Downs racing fame, came to the Shaw community in south Parker county and established what was then known as the Waggoner Muleshoe Ranch. Mr. Shaw assisted Mr. Waggoner in building a hewn log cabin that served as ranch headquarters. During this time Mr. Waggoner was just a plain cowman, had not acquired his first million and Tom Waggoner, his son, now 79 years old and living in Fort Worth, was just 3 years old. The senior Waggoner stocked the ranch with cattle and put a Mr. Brogden in charge. The first Waggoner brand was D, but no blacksmith shop was available to make branding irons, so a mule's shoe was substituted for the letter D; therefore, the ranch was called the Muleshoe Ranch. Mr. Holland bought the old ranch cabin, moved it to Holland's Lake and it now forms the second unit of Double Log Cabin.

Each cabin room has a stone chimney, at the end of which are rocks selected from a dismantled chimney of the old Isaac Parker home, for whom the county of Parker was named. The walls are chinked and daubed, and fireplaces are supplied with old style dog irons. Dutch ovens, iron pots and tea kettles surround hearth and pot-rack. The porch is supported by cedar posts from Sam Bass' old camp in Palo Pinto county.

One door of one cabin has six bullet holes in it, just as the Indians shot them there 64 years ago. It was in the early '70's that a family named Rippey moved out on the extreme frontier. They lived in a small cabin and depended on hunting and farming as a means of livelihood.

"Heap Brave White Squaw!"

One day Rippey and a hired man were cutting timber about a mile from home. To save time, he requested his wife to cook and bring dinner to himself and hired man. With dinner pail in one hand and rifle in the other, Mrs. Rippey had proceeded about a half mile on her journey when she was intercepted by six Indians in war paint. She hurried to a grove of trees, placed her back against a tree and leveled her rifle at the chief's head. Without firing a shot she thus held the Indians at bay. They knew one or possibly two of them, at least, would be killed if they attacked her, and they had no guns.

The Indians threatened and attempted to advance, but Mrs. Rippey held dians looked perplexed and dismayed. Finally the chief grunted, "Heap brave white squaw," gave a signal, turned and marched away, his warriors following him.

But the savage is a vengeful foe and bides his time. Mr. and Mrs. Rippey were brutally murdered a few months following her encounter with the six Indians.

Killed from Ambush

Early one morning Mr. Rippey left home alone to inspect some wolf traps. For several months no lurking savages had been seen in the vicinity and he suspected no immediate danger of treachery from this source. But while passing a rugged spot in the hills, Indians shot him dead from ambush and scalped him where he lay. Not knowing the fate of her husband, or reason for his long absence, Mrs. Rippey set out in search of him. Fearless and self-reliant, like all pioneer women, she went alone. But the same Indians that waylaid and killed her husband also waylaid and killed her.

Soon after penetrating this double murder the Indians appeared before the Rippey cabin, uttering war whoops. Inside the cabin, with doors barred, were a little child of the dead parents and a young hired boy. The Indians pounded the door and demanded admittance. The hired boy poked the muzzle of a gun through a hole in the wall, but quickly withdrew it, without firing. He had just one load in the gun, no more ammunition, and concluded to save this load for defense should the Indians break down the door.

Too cowardly to batter down the door and face a gun, the Indians tried to kill the two children by shooting through it. They fired six bullets into the door and then retreated, leaving the boy and girl unmolested. These six bullet marks are still in the door, which is now part of the Double Log Cabin, moved to Holland's Lake and Park, two miles southeast of Weatherford.

Another Heroic Defense

Another story of heroic defense linked with Double Log Cabin occurred August, 1873. John Bumgarner and family occupied one of the cabins, built in 1859 in northeast Parker county. George McClesky, who lived near Bumgarner, had stayed overnight in the Bumgarner home for the purpose of accompanying him early next morning on a cattle round-up. At daylight their horses, saddled and hitched, stood in front of the cabin door. While mounting the horses the two white men were fired upon by seven Indians who had crept near the cabin, under cover, wearing headgear made of broom weeds so as to better conceal their movements. McClesky fell fatally wounded from the first volley fired by the Indians—a bullet striking a vital spot, paralyzing him from the waist down. Bumgarner dragged McClesky into the cabin, closed and barred the door and began shooting back at the Indians. McClesky, though paralyzed and dying, requested that his Henry rifle be brought to him. With rifle in hand he punched daubing from between the cabin logs, thrust his gun's muzzle through the cracks thus made and shot several Indians before expiring. Some of the bullets fired by the Indians yet remain imbedded in the walls of this old cabin, which now makes up the first unit of Double Log Cabin.

Mr. Holland has made a museum of Double Log Cabin and within its walls are many interesting relics of pioneer days, including Indian relics. Three years ago he entertained the editors of the Texas Press Association with a barbecued chicken dinner in the park where he set up the Double Log Cabin as a shrine to the valiant and faithful men and women of the Texas frontier.

them at a safe distance. She knew their language and talked to them, without showing fear.

"Run," they told her.

"No! Run, you kill me," she replied.

"No, you run, we no kill," the Indian chief answered.

"You run," said Mrs. Rippey. "I no shoot."

Thus they parleyed.

Mrs. Rippey was cool and collected, holding her rifle aim steady. The in-

The Snake Farm Near New Braunfels,

By VERA EIKEL
New Braunfels, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

OTTO Martin Locke makes a business of snakes, a business that runs into thousands of dollars annually. He deals in all kinds of snakes, poisonous and non-poisonous, selling them to zoos and carnival companies. He also extracts venom from the fangs of poisonous snakes and sells it to laboratories and to hospitals. This venom is used to counteract the bites of rattlers, moccasins and copperheads.

Fifteen years ago Locke started catching snakes as a boyhood pastime. He just caught them for fun only, never assuming they could be sold, but as time went on the demand for all kinds of reptiles became so great that he established a snake farm near New Braunfels, Texas.

"I find snakes along rivers, in fields, and hills," says Locke. "I capture them with a four-foot snake stick. A leather strap runs the length of the stick and forms a noose at the end; this makes snake-catching safer and faster, but any snake can be caught barehanded by pinioning its neck down with a forked stick and grabbing it behind the head. However, only experienced persons should try this."

"Sometimes snakes are found in caves and dens, but seldom inhabit deep ravines. In spring and summer they are caught mostly in the open. Being cold-blooded, they hide in the ground for warmth in winter."

"Snakes that I don't catch myself I buy from Mexicans and ranchers. Rattlers and bull-snakes are in constant demand and bring higher prices. I sent a shipment of these species to the Century of Progress Fair, at Chicago. Besides zoos in this country that I supply with live snakes, there are several zoos in Germany, England and Austria that buy my snakes."

Nineteen Species of Rattlers

"Of the nineteen recognized species of rattlesnakes in the United States, ten of these species make the Southwest their home. These ten snakes may be found within a 100-mile radius of New Braunfels. They are the Texas rattler, Timber rattler (found particularly in East Texas), Edward's rattler, Black-tailed rattler, Red rattler, Tiger rattler, Horned rattler, Green rattler, Price's rattler and the White rattler. Patterns and colors may vary with each species, but they are all rattlers and poisonous, the Diamond Back being the most poisonous."

In Mr. Locke's collection are the Coachwhip and King snakes. Clay-colored and without markings, the Coachwhip distinguishes themselves by beating their prey to death.

The King snakes, shiny-black with white stripes, are strangely immune to the venom of other snakes. They are natural born fighters and delight in killing rattlers and moccasins of much larger size than themselves. Coiling their bodies around the enemy, the King snake squeezes its victim to death. After death comes a mad rush between the different King snakes to eat the victim.

Often a small King snake, while swallowing the dead snake, will be met near the center by a larger King snake that started swallowing the dead snake at the tail. The result of this novel feast is that the larger of the two Kings will usually swallow both the dead and the live snakes.

Poisonous and Non-poisonous

Locke reached into a box from which he drew a five-foot Bull snake. Wide of body and blue and yellow with black streaks, the Bull snakes are among his best sellers, due to hardness and gentleness.

Locke next pulled from its den a most ferocious-looking fellow, the Hog-nose snake, or spreading Adder. Locke teases it into a rage. Through a turned-up snout it began hissing and spreading its body. The belly spreads three times the width of the head. When further tormented, it turns on its back and shams death.

"Snakes are divided into poisonous and non-poisonous groups," Locke continues. "Many snakes are harmless—the Corn snake, the Grass snake, the Chicken snake and so on. The poisonous ones are the rattlers, moccasins, copperheads, and coral snakes. I have all but the last in stock."

"Recently a coral snake was killed in Landa Park, just outside of New Braunfels. This variety seldom reaches me. Their rarity and deadliness make them scarce; people refuse to handle them."

"In these cages on the wall I raise white mice. Twice a week I feed each snake from four to six of these live mice. Most snakes ignore dead food. Rabbits and rats also serve as live food. Snakes eat only during their season, which begins April 1 and lasts through to August. Just now they are hard to find because they seek shade in underbrush when it gets very hot."

Big Snakes Eat Little Ones

"Without sufficient food, large snakes begin eating smaller ones. To avoid this, I keep them separated, according to size. They seldom need water, and like to coil up in dark corners."

Locke demonstrated how he extracts venom from the rattler. Taking a small beaker from a shelf, he picked up the snake-stick and opened the hatch of his largest rattler. Even before the lid was raised, the five-footer began rattling. As the noose tightened around the snake's head, Locke drew him out full length before your eyes. Tongue darting and beady eyes snapping, Mr. Diamond Back beats vainly against his captor's body. Locke prides the jaws open by holding him just behind the head. The fatal fangs appear on either side of the snake's mouth like two long cat-claws. Locke places the rattler's mouth over the edge of the beaker and presses five drops of yellow venom from the roof of its mouth. This is called "milking" the snake. Then Locke proceeds to defang. With a pair of

Snake Venom at $30 an Ounce

Crystallized snake venom sells to the Antivenim Institute in Philadelphia at $30.00 an ounce. Although a snake may be "milked" twice a day, it is best to do this but twice a week, and for two reasons: The snake remains healthier when retaining some of his natural poison, and the milking process nets a greater amount of venom when done less often. From one to four shots of serum will counteract a snake-bite; each shot costs $10.00.

Since poisons found in the venom of rattlers, moccasins, and copperheads are the same, only different in proportion, the antivenim of rattlers will serve the same purpose for all three varieties. No serum is known to exist for the Coral snake.

Locke handles over 10,000 snakes each year. With carnivals and zoos comprising the largest market, colleges and universities come next; they need snakes for experimental work in herpetology.

"The snake business," says Locke, "is one business that the depression has not affected. Prices and demand are as high as ever. Species foreign to Texas I order from agents established elsewhere. Some of these agents are in Europe, some in Asia. I have one agent in Singapore. My boas and pythons come from Mexico."

"Once a person learns the habits of snakes and how to handle them, the danger is slight," concludes Locke. "When people become better educated in this field they will learn that harmless snakes should be permitted to live because they kill rats and mice. At the same time, people should learn the dangerous snakes so they can protect themselves accordingly."

WOMEN SPONSOR PIONEER ROUNDUP

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Plainview sponsors annually one of the largest West Texas pioneer reunions held in the State. This year, May 19, there was a "Frontier Days on the Plains Pageant," recalling the time when early settlers lived in dugouts, punched cattle, fought prairie fires and traveled 50 miles to attend a square dance. Old timers were seen in the parade, riding in covered wagons, buggies, buckboards and other vehicles, reminders of early days, while others rode cowponies with packhorses behind. At dinner time there was a chuck wagon feast.

IN QUEST OF QUICKSILVER

The United States Geological Survey is investigating the Terlingue quicksilver district in Brewster county to determine general factors which will be valuable in prospecting for the metal even in areas outside the present district, including the Chisos and Christmas mountains. The survey report says, in part:

"It is highly unlikely that quicksilver deposition in this part of Texas was confined to the present developed area in the Terlingue district. If market conditions should improve so as to warrant extensive exploration it may well be that new ore bodies will be found both in the deeper parts of some of the present mines and prospects and in areas outside the present district."

FIRST PRE-CENTENNIAL FETE

Pampa held the first pre-centennial and pioneers roundup on May 31 and June 1, attended by members of the centennial commission, State and national officials and thousands of citizens, including pioneers. The major event was the historical pageant in the natural bowl of the city's park. Most of the men who took part had grown mustaches and sideburns to make them appear more realistic in their parts. There were 14 scenes on two huge stages—a drama with scores of costumed actors portraying Texas history from 1534 to 1834. More than a thousand Texas flags adorned the streets, and there were flags of the United States, Mexico, Spain and France.

Making Us Heartless

WACKERS are making this a heartless generation, have put such fear in the minds of motorists that no one dare offer an act of kindness on the highway. A few years ago no motorist would pass another motorist who appeared to be in trouble. His car would come to a stop and he would ask: "What can I do for you?" Now, when a car is seen stranded by the highway it is only notification to step on the gas and greater speed. A few years ago it was rare for a motorist not to offer a ride to the man or woman he overtook on the road. Now, thumbs are raised in vain as the speeding car throws dust on the pedestrian. It is, really, a sad commentary on our modern life when the spirit of kindness must give way to precaution. Some one has remarked that even the Good Samaritan would have hesitated stopping to relieve the wounded man had he lived in this day and time. Down near San Antonio a few weeks ago a man, whose arm had been jerked out of socket in an automobile accident, stood by the side of the road all night long signaling every motorist for help that came by. He estimated that at least 700 cars passed him without stopping. It was not until after daylight that an officer came along and picked up the unfortunate man. But who can blame those who refuse to extend aid? Two highway patrolmen a few weeks ago near Grapevine, Tarrant county, Texas, saw a car parked just off the highway with a man and woman in it. Thinking they might need aid, the patrolmen approached the car and were greeted with a rain of bullets from a machine gun. Both were killed instantly, not having been given a dog's chance to defend themselves. Something must be done to make traveling safer on our highways. A friend of mine who for several years each summer took long auto journeys, accompanied by his wife, tells me they will not risk it this year—too much robbery and hijacking, he says. Now, isn't that a travesty on American civilization? Honest citizens afraid to use highways that their taxes have built. Our highways should be made safe for honest folk, no matter what the costs. A hundred of the old-time rangers could clear our State of gangsters in 60 days.

Can We Afford to Discourage Thrift?

Congress has passed what is called an "old age pension" measure which proposes to give to each person who has passed the age of 65 an allotment of $35.00 a month. The law only applies to the District of Columbia, as the national government would be invading rights of States if the law was applied nationally. A few States have old age pensions, but in none of them is the pension so large as in the District of Columbia. There are diverse opinions as to the wisdom of such legislation. That the State should provide for its paupers is the belief of many citizens. But the old age pension does away with the pauper qualification. It holds out to every person 65 years old the guarantee of a fairly good living, the wife as well as the husband receiving the pension. Somehow, it looks to me like it will do away with the incentive to save that one may be independent when old age comes. It sounds rather revolutionary to those of us who have passed 65 to be told we were foolish to have saved our money. No use any more to save for a rainy day, the government will furnish us an umbrella. To children it will be a temptation to shift the burden of looking after their aged parents on to the State. No use to make sacrifices, no reason to save, no necessity for being thrifty and frugal—just go ahead shiftless until the time arrives for said pension. We must be careful in these times, that we do not make habitual paupers of many of our people. I know of a county in Texas with population of 50,000 where the heads of 821 families are being given relief work and at the same time there are 912 families on direct relief—that is, they are furnished food, shelter and clothing without any return therefore in the way of work. This county is no exception. In one county I notice there are 58,000 people on relief rolls. Can it be possible that Texas is in any such a situation as would justify this alternative? Writing as one who has passed the three-score and ten allotment, who was born with no silver spoon in his mouth, who has earned and is still earning every dollar that has come to him, I can but feel an earnest solicitude for the future. Old-fashioned, of course, is the idea that thrift, saving, independence and work are what we need. But it were these virtues which inspired our pioneer fathers, and by exercising them they built the greatest country this old world has ever known.

Not a Healthy Situation

The expense of holding party primaries is a terrific burden on candidates. In one county alone in Texas the Democratic primary will cost $26,000. Most of this expense will fall on candidates for county offices. The cost of getting one's name on the ballot in some counties will be more than 75 per cent of the first year's salary of some of the offices. Candidates for State offices are let off comparatively light. A fee of $50 puts the candidate's name on the tickets in every county. Yet the expense of making a campaign for a State office must more than absorb the salary of the successful candidate. Expensive headquarters are maintained by most of these candidates, voters are circularized, and there are 1,225,000 qualified voters in Texas. The postage alone to send one circular to all of these voters would be $12,250, and there isn't a State office that will pay such sum during the two-year term of office. It has been said that some candidates for Governor in Texas during the past few years have spent more than $100,000. This may be an exaggeration, but undoubtedly no person has been elected Governor in Texas the past ten years that didn't spend, either he or his friends, more than was received in salary. It is not a healthy situation.

Government Cannot Always Provide

There cannot be too much emphasis on the necessity of small landowner and tenant farmer using the government rented acres for producing food for himself, his family and his livestock. Heretofore it has been claimed that the banker, or furnishing merchant, demanded the production of cotton to insure the return of advances in either money or merchandise. But that excuse is no longer valid. In fact, those financing the farmer have invariably urged the farmer to plant food crops. There should be no calls from the rural sections next winter for food. The government offers free land and nature invites the man who wants to work to become independent. We must somehow get away from the idea that the government will provide. The terrible expense that is now going on for relief must stop soon or the country will be bankrupt. Evidently the President and Congress are taking this view, as no great appropriation like those of last year have been made, or proposed.

Gambling Gone (?)

I notice in one county in the oil fields during one month that there were 78 negroes arrested for shooting craps, but no arrests for any other form of gambling. Presuming those negroes were guilty (and who ever heard of a craps shooter not being found guilty) and they paid the usual fine of $1.00 and costs, amounting to $16.50 (which I understand is the standard sum), the officers collected $1,287.00. Now, if there were other forms of gambling going on in that county, like poker for instance, or other games of chance, that are said to sometimes exist in the oil fields, these officers have overlooked reaping a golden harvest. But, of course, "there ain't no such animal"—just crap-shooters.

Word Spelled Wrong

A man was indicted in Lamar county, Texas, and in the indictment the word February was spelled "Fubeuary." The presiding District Judge quashed the indictment and, according to a Paris newspaper, the case up to the time of quashing had cost the county $196.11. The judge is not to be condemned for this ruling, for had he tried the case the Court of Appeals most certainly would have reversed the case. And not because the misspelled word had any bearing on the guilt or innocence of the party indicted, but because our laws have been written or construed in favor of the criminal.

For Him 100 Per Cent

Just now there is considerable jesting about the college professors, known as the "brain trust," in regard to their theories of government. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia vows one of them tried to make him believe 2 and 2 made 5. No doubt some of the theories advanced by the lesser "brain trusters" are, to say the least, novel. For example, one of them announces this panacea for all our troubles: "All we've got to do is curtail production, thereby raising prices which will give us more money to relieve the increased unemployment brought about by curtailed production." Study that theory a little and see if your head doesn't swim. But what I want to say is that all the professors are not goofy. Dr. Dudley Reed, one of the professors, has raised a standard that all men can rally around. The Doctor wants to get back to the good old-fashioned desserts of a generation ago. He confesses these old-time desserts were not conducive to health, yet he is for them. He rails at the modern pastries built up around fluffy egg-whites, designed to please the eye rather than the palate or the stomach. He even goes so far as to say: "I'd rather die on cherry pie than live on floating island." We are for the doctor 100 per cent, and I wish he were down here in East Texas at the time this is being written. I would like to set before him a whole plate of strawberry shortcake, or a full round dewberry pie.

Mother Nature Takes a Hand

At the time I am writing this the most destructive drouth in the history of the great grain belt of the Middle West and Northwest is damaging crops, according to Secretary Wallace, at the rate of $2,000,000 per day. The wheat crop is hit the hardest, having been reduced hundreds of millions of bushels. All of Mr. Wallace's efforts to reduce the wheat yield are puny compared with Mother Nature when she takes a hand. Some of us old-timers believe it would be better to leave this matter of crop production to the Lord of the Harvest. We might learn a lesson from what Joseph did in Egypt some 5,000 years ago. It will be remembered during the years of plenty Joseph did nothing to reduce the yield of the fertile fields of the Nile. He never paid the farmers to plow up their crops nor did he pay them not to plant. Instead, he gathered up the surplus and "laid up food in the cities; the food of the field, which was round about every city, laid he up in the same." No matter how much the land yielded Joseph didn't resort to any measures to curtail production. The good book says: "And Joseph gathered corn as the sands of the sea, very much, until he left numbering; for it was without number." And then came the lean years when the rain ceased and the heavens were as brass and all crops wilted where they stood. And then: "When the famine was all over the land Joseph opened all the warehouses of Egypt." No man knoweth when Mother Nature will withhold bountiful yields. Man in his smallness cannot control nature. As an old negro friend said to me during the plow-up campaign: "Man pints but God disappints."

Are We Producing Too Much?

Possibly we are not producing too much wheat and too much corn and cotton. Possibly there are hungry ones, naked ones, who need every grain of wheat and every lock of cotton. Possibly we have made a mess of what God has given us; have failed in our way of distribution. I read only the other day of the death of a little girl 3 years old. She died from eating poisonous weeds that grew in the yard of the poor home in which she lived. When the case was investigated it was found the child had had no food for 48 hours, the father was hunting work, the mother dying from starvation, confined to her bed. The little one with the pangs of hunger gnawing staggered into the yard and ate of the deadly night-blooming shade. When that little soul went up to God unbidden I can almost hear His solemn words: "Did my Son die in vain?" God help us in our greed and selfishness and ignorance. Are we raising too much wheat?

Open Season for Candidates

It is now an open season for candidates. "Graveyard" workings, multifarious schemes to hold up the candidates, such as picnics, pie suppers, box suppers, raffles, quilt auctions, buying bells and flags for school houses, donating to some man whose house was burned, church socials, tickets to everything, from an old Confederates' program of raising money to send them to the reunion to a school exhibition, donating for a new roof for a church, a stove for a school house, or buying a pig for a barbecue. I saw a candidate pay $2.50 for a box supper the other night which contained two Ben Davis apples, two small oranges and two slices of bologna sausage. The same night a candidate paid $15.50 for a quilt that was put up at auction for the benefit of a widow who had made it as her contribution to the church. And the candidate who doesn't chip in is considered "short." I asked one veteran campaigner, a successful one, how he could afford the generous subscriptions he made to every cause. I had noticed his name always leading every name on every list in the amount contributed. He said: "I will tell you, but it is confidential. I never pay them. They understand me and use me as a bait to get other candidates to come across. I expect during the last 20 years I have subscribed several thousand dollars to various objects, but if I have ever paid one I don't remember it. I help catch the suckers and they re-elect me to office every time."

Old vs. New Methods of Political Campaigning

By JOE SAPPINGTON

522 Sedwick Ave., Waco, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

QUITE a number of candidates for political offices are delivering speeches over the radio, thinking this a good way to get before the voting masses. But it lacks certain human elements compared to the old methods of campaigning.

There's something artificial about most radio speeches of candidates—the speeches seem to lack punch, or dramatic effect. I remember, when I was about old enough to cast my first ballot, that I got all "het-up" and a black-eye during a free-for-all fight at the close of a joint discussion between two rival political candidates. But, to save my life, I couldn't get up enough party belligerency to tell a New England Yankee he was a liar, after hearing him lambast the Democratic party for an hour over the radio.

"Bill had a keen wit, a lashing retort."

of programs over the air—from grand operty to the barking of Admiral Byrd's dogs at the South Pole—why bother listening to a labored speech delivered into a microphone?

A friend of mine, making the race for a local office, invited me to listen in to a ten-minute talk he was going to make via radio one evening at 8 p. m. He wanted me to tell him frankly what I thought of the speech.

Heard Never a Word

I promised him faithfully I would hear the speech, but at 8 p. m. daughter was listening to a blamed crooner and got mad as a hornet when son wanted to tune in the latest baseball scores. They began scuffling for the dials, and by the time the row was over my political friend's time was up, he was through talking and I heard never a word of his speech.

I am not knocking radio, but when it comes to political campaigns I prefer the eye-to-eye and face-to-face contact in practice long before radio was ever thought of. In those old-time spellbinder campaigns we were free to shout ourselves hoarse, shake fists and throw hats in the air. I can think of nothing more incongruous than one of those early-day campaigners standing before a microphone speaking to an imaginary audience. Take, for example, Pegleg Douglas, who lost a leg at the battle of Bull Run and who couldn't make a speech without getting mad and cussing out the Yankees. What a spectacle he would have made standing in front of and talking into a microphone.

Bryan's Cross-of-Gold Speech

Bryan's cross-of-gold speech would have sounded somewhat flat and far-fetched coming over a nation-wide radio hook-up. But with Bryan's magnetic personality and matchless eloquence that speech stamped the Democratic National Convention at Chicago into nominating him for the Presidency.

Another handicap confronting ye old-time campaigner had he depended solely on radio was answering hecklers—and there were lots of heckling. I recall the time Bill Tilson made that speech at Cave Creek while running for the Legislature against a wild-eyed Populist. Bill had a keen wit, a lashing retort, and the way he answered hecklers kept the crowd in uproar. He told one heckler he didn't mind replying to questions asked by an intelligent man, but he refused to answer questions asked by a man who so nearly resembled a chimpanzee that the only difference was the tail. This final retort silenced the hecklers.

It may be, in a few years from now, all political campaigns will be run by radio, but one thing is certain that method of campaigning will not appeal to us fellows who can remember the militant days when all Democrats were supposed to cuss Republicans, Wall Street, high tariff and bloated bondholders as long and as loud as they pleased.

How Trappers Catch Predatory Wild Animals

By VAN BLARCOM

406 W. Seventh St., Fort Worth, Texas.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Home Color Print Co.)

THE March report of the Texas Predatory Animal Control Association, with headquarters at San Antonio, Texas, shows 77 government trappers working in 43 West Texas counties, between Tarrant county and the New Mexico State line, and from the Panhandle to the Gulf of Mexico. During March the trappers accounted for 175 bobcats, 974 coyotes, 10 wolves and 4 mountain lions. Since July, 1916, and up to the end of the 1933 fiscal year, government trappers have caught 7 bears, 11,451 bobcats, 66,108 coyotes, 7,625 wolves and 123 mountain lions.

These government men trap exclusively for predatory animals. They make no effort to catch small furbearers, such as raccoons and opossums, which do no damage to livestock. When these animals are caught, accidentally, they are released if not too seriously injured by the trap.

Comparatively few mountain lions, bobcats and bear are caught in traps set for the coyote or the wolf. These species of predatory animals are usually hunted by a scout with trained dogs.

Cunning and Highly Intelligent

Every wild animal possesses some form of defense against danger or harm to itself. With wolves and coyotes this is shown in their acute sense of smell, alert hearing and keen eyesight. To catch these animals successfully one must work to defeat these highly developed senses when placing traps, and success comes only with a full knowledge of the habits of the animals. Wolves are the most difficult to catch in a trap. They are cunning, suspicious and highly intelligent, especially the adult wolf. This is also true of coyotes.

On the open range coyotes and wolves have what are commonly known as "scent posts," established along their runways. Finding these posts is of prime importance to the trapper, for it is at such points that the traps usually are set. If such posts cannot be found, the trapper establishes one by dropping scent on a cluster of weeds or grass. Animals cannot be caught unless traps are set where they may step into them. If set where coyotes or wolves are not accustomed to stop on their travels they usually pass them on the run. Even if the scent is detected, the fact that it is in an unusual place may arouse the animal's suspicion and cause it to become shy and make a detour. The formula for making this scent can be obtained by writing the Texas Predatory Animal Association, San Antonio, Texas.

Where to Set Traps

Places where carcasses of animals killed by wolves or coyotes or carcasses that have died from natural causes and have lain for a long time offer excellent spots for setting traps, for wolves and coyotes often re-visit these carcasses. Other good situations are at the intersection of two or more trails, around old bedding grounds of sheep, and at water holes on the open range. Ideal places for traps are points six to eight inches from the base of low clusters of weeds or grasses along a trail used as a runway.

Traps must be clean, with no foreign odor. In setting a trap a hole the length and width of the trap, with trap jaws open, is dug. While digging the trapper stands or kneels on a "setting cloth," about three feet square, made of canvas, or a piece of sheep or calf hide. If canvas is used the human scent must be removed by previously burying it in an old manure pile.

Dirt removed from a hole dug to bed a trap is placed on the setting cloth. The trap is then dropped into the hole and firmly bedded so as to rest perfectly level. With the trap pad in place the entire trap is carefully covered with earth from the setting cloth. The trap pad, to be effective, must contain no foreign odor that might arouse the suspicion of wolf or coyote. Leave the ground as natural as it was before the trap was concealed.

QUAIL HATCHED IN WINTER
There is a half-grown covey of quail on the Watkins ranch, near El Vivian, north of Quanah, that was hatched during this winter. The unusually mild winter is thought to be responsible for the phenomena.

AUTO REGISTRATIONS
In 15 Texas counties, representing all sections of Texas, passenger car registration for March totaled 4,767, against 5,108 in February and 1,860 in March, 1933. During the first three months of the current year, registrations totaled 9,634, against 5,850 for the same period last year, a gain of 65 per cent.

NO FOREIGN PLANTS IN PARKS
The National Park Service has ruled that it will not permit the planting of foreign trees, shrubs and flowers in State parks that were created or improved by Federal funds. "Such gifts cannot be accepted nor such permission granted," says a department official. "The idea is to preserve America as she has been, is and will be."

TEXAN DISCOVERS NEW DRUG
A drug for treating diabetic gangrene has been discovered by C. L. Gutzet, instructor in organic chemistry at the University of Texas. The drug is derived from a Texas plant, the name of which has not been divulged. It is reported to have been used successfully in the treatment of diabetic gangrene, heretofore regarded as incurable.

TEXAS SHELLS FOR BUTTONS
Thousands of men, women and children all over the United States are using buttons on their garments made from Texas shells, but do not know it. C. V. Boyer of Des Moines, Iowa, who has an extensive button plant in that city, was in San Saba recently buying more San Saba river shells. He says they are among the best in the United States for the manufacture of buttons.

MUCH GAS BLOWN AWAY
More than 159,000,000,000 estimated feet of gas was blown into the atmosphere in Texas by gas and oil companies last year. About 27,375,000,000 estimated cubic feet were used by wells which are not connected to casinghead gasoline plants. The rest was used by natural gas companies. About 12,000,000 cubic feet were consumed for industrial and domestic uses.

AND THE EGGS HATCHED
Wool warehousemen are accustomed to finding almost anything in wool while sorting it, but the other week sorters for a firm in San Angelo came upon a setting of eggs in a sack of wool. A Mexican employed by the Webb warehouse took the eggs home, placed them under a setting hen and awaited results. A few days later the hen hatched most of them.

CCC MONEY SENT HOME
The War Department announced the latter part of April that CCC campmen from Texas have sent $2,799,170 home to dependents since the Emergency Conservation Work program began in April, 1933. Each enrolled man allotted from $20 to $25 of his $30 monthly pay check to home dependents. Checks covering these allotments are mailed directly from the War Department finance office to the dependents of the CCC men.

BIG CHECKING JOB
It may be three or four months before claimants get their share of the $500,000 appropriated by the State to repay farmers who were put to an additional expense during the pink boll worm cleanup campaign several years ago in Texas. There are about 10,000 claims to be checked. Fred W. Davis, chairman of the refund board, says that at the rate of one claim every three minutes, it would take his force more than two months to check all of them.

AUTO 20 YEARS OLD
Will Richter, 71, and his brother, G. A. Richter, 70, who reside on a farm 12 miles south of Temple, are still using a Kirt model auto, made in Detroit, which was bought in Austin in 1913, for $900. The machine was guaranteed to climb an ordinary hill without changing gears and make 20 miles an hour. In the 20 years the brothers have owned the car they have driven it only 11,000 miles. Its outstanding features are strong buggy type springs, original paint and spark plugs, part of the original upholstery, Presto-lite system and high tension Bosch magneto.

TEXAS HORSES IN DEMAND
There is a growing demand for good riding horses in the United States Army, and when possible, the government buys Texas horses. Capt. H. R. Gay of the re-mount service purchased 19 animals in the San Angelo section for use at El Reno, Okla. The return of racing in Texas has renewed the interest of breeders in producing better strains. And since the army is in quest of more sturdy animals, stables are being established in different parts of Texas to produce horses that will meet the requirements of military authorities.

COLT BORN WITH FIVE HOOFS
A colt, with five hoofs, was born recently on the Percy Franklin ranch in Llano county. The extra hoof was perfectly formed from the ankle down and was joined to one of the front feet. The animal walked on its four regular hoofs, the fifth not quite touching the ground. A Llano doctor amputated the extra hoof.

RE-UNITED AFTER 56 YEARS
After a separation of 56 years, two sisters were re-united a few weeks ago at Stephenville. They were Mrs. Jasper Lee, 87, of that city, and Mrs. Annie Clark, of Stantonville, Tenn. Mrs. Clark, who is the youngest of eight sisters, came to Texas to see Mrs. Lee, the oldest of the sisters, who is ill.

GARNER MADE "PILL ROLLER"
"Pill Roller" is the latest honor that has been added to the long list of titles bestowed upon Vice-President John N. Garner. When the American Pharmaceutical Association met in Washington the middle of April the Texas delegates presented him a silver membership card in the Texas Pharmaceutical Association. It was presented at a special reception held by the Texans.

UNIQUE RECORD
Judge John William Childress, born in Rusk county, in 1853, is one of the few surviving pioneers of Somerville county who has witnessed the creation of the county and who has resided in three counties while living in the same house. His parents located on Hill Creek and built a log cabin. Through legislative enactment the boundaries were so changed that at various times Judge Childress' home was in Bosque, Hood and Somerville counties.

STATE IN GOOD CONDITION
Economically speaking, Texas is in a better condition than most other States of the Southwest, in the opinion of Elmer H. Johnson, regional economist of the University of Texas bureau of business research. He expressed that opinion upon his return home after attending a conference of economists in Chicago recently.

SEES FIRST SHEEP CLIPPED
James A. McDonald is wool superintendent for a Lawrence, Mass., plant that has handled billions of pounds of Texas and other wools, much of it passing under the personal supervision of Mr. McDonald. But it was not until a couple of weeks ago that he saw a sheep clipped. Accompanied by a wool buyer, C. D. Stokes of Lampasas, the New England man visited the Walter Real ranch near Kerrville. It was there he saw for the first time fleece clipped from a sheep.

BACK-TO-THE-FARM
The Mitchell County Relief Board made the announcement recently that at the conclusion of its farm survey it found there was not an unoccupied desirable farm house in the entire county. Several years ago there were scores of good farm homes without tenants—farmers had migrated. "Back-to-the-farm" movement is mainly responsible for this condition in Mitchell county.

RANKS FIRST IN LATIN
Doris Fowler of Central junior high school, Temple, is the best first year Latin scholar in Texas, according to State interscholastic league records. She took first place in a district contest at Cleburne early in April, and her paper went into the State-wide judging contest. Miss Fowler was given a rating of .998. Miss Marian Mackey, also of Temple, was second in the third year contest with a grade of .919.

42 CCC CAMPS FOR TEXAS
Forty-two CCC camps will be operated in Texas this summer. Ten will be new State park camps. The allocation provides for 17 State park camps, 11 private erosion camps, nine private forest camps, three State forest camps and two soil erosion service camps. Texas' enrollment quota is 12,925. Of this number 8,652 will work in Texas. The remainder will be assigned to work in other States.

REUNION BUILDING PLANS ACCEPTED
Plans for the headquarters building and bunkhouse for pioneer cowboys to be erected on the Texas Cowboy Reunion grounds at Stamford, have been accepted. It is hoped to have the structure ready for occupancy when the association meets July 2, 3 and 4. The center of the building will be a living room, 22 by 40 feet, for cowboy dances and meetings. One wing will house a lounge room for men, with lavatories and shower baths, with similar conveniences for women, besides a dressing room. The other wing will contain the dining room and kitchen.

HE IS GOING BACKWARD
H. B. William of Houston, who gained much notoriety when he started to roll a hoop from that city to New York, has announced a new stunt. He plans to drive an auto of 1914 model backward to New York, accompanied by a four-piece band. He will distribute cards reading: "Houston to New York Backward. (But There is Nothing Backward About Houston.)"

TEXAS PRODUCTS WANTED FOR ALASKA
Mrs. Etta W. Ringgold, San Saba county demonstration agent, has received a request from Miss Madge J. Reece at Washington, D. C., district agent for the United States Department of Agriculture, for a display of leather articles made by Texas home demonstration women. They are to be sent to Alaska to be used in extending the work in leather manufacturing there. Miss Reece made special request for samples of gloves and jackets.

SAN AUGUSTINE TO CELEBRATE HISTORIC BUILDINGS
San Augustine, one of the first white settlements in Texas, plans a part in the contemplated Texas Centennial in 1936. It is proposed to restore the old structures in the town and otherwise make them interesting so they will draw tourists throughout the year. In San Augustine are remnants of a Spanish mission, the old fort and the first Methodist church erected in Texas—the McMahon Chapel. The restoration of the latter will be presented to the State Centennial celebration of Methodists in San Antonio next fall, when Methodists will be asked to co-operate in the movement for restoration of this historic structure. Establishment of a State park also will be attempted.

TRADES DAY AT QUANAH
The above picture shows the crowded condition of the public square at Quanah on a Trades Day held the middle of May. The same scene as shown above is found in about 200 other cities and towns in Texas when a Trades Day is held by the merchants, with the chamber of commerce, banks and civic organizations co-operating. A few years ago Trade Days were an experiment; now they are profitable to all concerned, and have become a permanent institution throughout the State.

NOW IT'S DONKEY BASEBALL
Donkey baseball is the latest sport at Floresville. To be a good player, one must be able to ride and guide a donkey with agility. The rules of the new game are similar to regular baseball, ordinary bats, bases and ball being used. All players are required to ride donkeys except the pitcher and catcher. The batter places his donkey near home plate. When he hits the ball he must mount his "steed" and race for first base. Fielders catch the ball astride donkeys.

GASOLINE TAX SHOWS INCREASE
The new Texas gasoline tax enforcement law rounded out its first full year of operation with a 20 per cent increase in revenue to the State during the first quarter of 1934. Combined gasoline tax for January, February and March exceeded the total for the same period last year by $1,269,872. This brought the full 12 months' recoveries to more than $4,250,000 above the previous period. The new law is intended to stop bootlegging of gas and to give comptroller adequate funds for enforcement. During the nine months it operated, in 1933, the law "picked up" more than $4,000,000.

WORKS FOR THE BLIND WITH BROKEN BACK
Miss Hazel H. Beckham of Tyler, confined to her bed with a broken back encased in a cast, directs the activities of the Texas Commission for the Blind, of which she is executive secretary. She received the injury in an auto accident last January. She dictates countless letters in the position of finding jobs for blind persons. Miss Beckham's current project is enlisting the co-operation of Lion's clubs over the State in establishing wayside inns, stocked with confections, tobacco and magazines for blind persons to operate. Experiments have shown that blind persons can operate them at a profit. She also is working on a project of sending out blind instructors to the larger cities to teach other blind persons the Braille system.

TEN COMMANDMENTS DEDICATED
A framed copy of the Ten Commandments adorns one of the corridors in the courthouse at Coleman. It was placed there by members of the Shakespeare Club, composed of women.

LOSES SANCTUARY AFTER 43 YEARS
Dr. W. J. Battle, professor of classical languages at University of Texas, is worried. It will not be long before he will be forced to vacate his tower room in the antiquated main building when it is razed to make room for the new $1,683,000 administration-library building. He has made it headquarters for 43 years. In that time he has collected some 11,000 classical books.

LARGE PETRIFIED FOREST
Montague county has one of the large petrified forests of the Southwest. It has excited the interest of scientists because the soil in that vicinity is no different from that throughout the county where other petrifications are found. The forest covers a number of square miles. Some of the trees are at least 100 feet tall, and some of the solidified trunks on the ground measure three feet in diameter.

2,315 WORDS OUT OF ONE
Harvey Watts of Valera, a Southwestern University student, is reported to have derived 2,315 words out of the Greek verb "graphein," which means "to write." Mr. Watts, an English student, took the Greek verb as a base, and made a study of words in the English language which have been derived from this base. When he had completed his research he found 2,315 words, including some obsolete expressions and terms, but for the most part good English.

OIL GUSHER DIDN'T EXCITE HIM
Discovery of an oil gusher on one's land or lease may be something for the average person to get excited about, but not so with Rev. W. L. Tubbs, Baptist minister at Cayuga, in the new East Texas oil field. While several hundred people watched the test of the well, Rev. Mr. Tubbs went about quietly milking his cows. His home is but a quarter of a mile from the gusher.

SNAKE INVADERS POST-OFFICE
Postal affairs were interrupted a few minutes several weeks ago when a chicken snake, measuring four feet, was found coiled around a light wire close to the ceiling in the San Saba postoffice. Postmaster Hill accounted for its invasion by saying that recently a number of baby chicks had been handled in the mails, and the snake evidently entered the quarters in the hope of feasting upon some of them.

NAIL REMOVED FROM STOMACH
Freddie Sackett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sackett of the Burkett community, near Coleman, swallowed an eight penny nail last October. It did not cause him any particular trouble until recently. He was taken to the Overall Hospital at Coleman several weeks ago where the nail was removed. It was found near the top of the stomach.

FEDERAL RESERVE BANK STATISTICS
Checks cashed by member banks reporting to the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank in April totaled $628,000,000, against $491,000,000 for March and $388,000,000 in April, 1933. Deposits showed a decline of 2 per cent from March, but an increase of 17.3 per cent over April, 1933. The sharp increase was limited entirely to demand deposits since there was a slight drop in time deposits in comparison with April last year. Loans showed practically no change from March, but there was a drop of nearly 14 per cent from April, 1933.

WARNING AGAINST APPENDICITIS
This is the season of the year when more deaths occur from appendicitis than in cooler weather. In the past 12 months about 650 Texans have died of the disease. The lives of many of these could have been saved if, upon first symptoms, they had summoned a physician. Taking of strong purges when one has pains in the abdomen is sometimes fatal. When the appendix is in a diseased condition strong laxatives often rupture the organ. Of the deaths mentioned, 588 had ruptured appendix and 35 per cent were not operated upon. The removal of the appendix by a good surgeon is now a very simple matter when done early, or before the appendix becomes infected and ruptures, which may take place 15 or 18 hours after the attack. Many persons wonder why there is so much appendicitis today when years ago it was never mentioned. The chief reason is that it was not recognized as appendicitis, but commonly known as inflammation of the bowels.

SHIPS 18,000 CARS FRUITS AND VEGETABLES
Lower Rio Grande Valley citrus and vegetable shipments exceeded 18,000 carloads for the season at the end of April with indications that a total of more than 20,000 carloads will be shipped this season.

50-YEAR-OLD ATTORNEYS
When the fifty-third annual convention of the Texas Bar Association meets at Fort Worth July 5, 6 and 7, special recognition will be paid attorneys who have practiced in the State for 50 years. They will be tendered a dinner and made life members of the association. There also will be a dinner for the justices of the Texas Supreme Court, the Courts of Criminal and Civil Appeals and all district judges.

LARGEST MAP IN THE WORLD
The largest geological map in the world, a map of Texas, is being drawn to a scale of 1,500,000 or one inch equaling eight miles, under the supervision of Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the University of Texas Bureau of Economic Geology, in co-operation with the United States Geological Survey. Done in colors and in four sections, the map will cost about $20,000 when completed. Completion will require another year.

PRACTICES WHAT HE TEACHES
Prof. Jack Spratt, economic teacher at San Angelo College, raises strawberries as a hobby, imparting his experiences to his classes. He started three years ago with 500 plants. Today he cultivates 100,000 on two city blocks. He says strawberries in a pot or flower bed are just as beautiful as violets. All planting and care are done scientifically.

COLLECTS DRAWINGS OF CATTLE BRANDS
Marion F. Peters, manager of the West Texas Gas Company at Midland, claims to have the only collection of cattle-brand drawings in existence. It is his hobby. He recently refused $5,000 for his collection. The collection consists of drawings and letters from eminent men and women throughout the world.

PANTHERS PREY ON COLTS
The wilds of the trans-Pecos section abound with panthers which prey upon colts of cattlemen. The cats prefer horse flesh to that of the big horn sheep. Because of their cunning, it has been found almost impossible to trap or run down the panthers. Fred Moore, near Alpine, who makes it a business of hunting the cats with his dogs, was able to kill but 11 last year. The panther crawls as close to the colt as it can, then stretches taut on the ground, waving its tail in the air to attract the attention of the colt. When the curiosity of the colt brings it within striking distance the cat catches the animal on the nose with one paw and, turning over on its back, tears open the underbody of the colt with one sweep of its knife-like claws.

A MOTHER'S DAY GIFT
When Pat M. Neff was about to take the oath as Governor, he stopped sufficiently long as he strode down the aisle in the House of Representatives toward the speaker's desk, to stoop over and kiss his aged mother, who occupied a seat in the aisle. The incident interested newspaper correspondents, who dilated upon it in their news stories or made a special feature of it. Later Mr. Neff created "Mother Neff Park" in Coryell county, on the Leon river, between Moody and McGregor. This year, as a Mother's Day gift, the former governor added 250 acres to the park. About 100 acres of the tract is under cultivation and will be used to grow many of the State's native flowers. The remainder of the land is heavily timbered and hilly.

with dry dust, if possible. It is well to have the covered surface over the trap a little lower than the surrounding ground, for a wolf or coyote is then less apt to scratch and expose the trap without springing it. Furthermore, the animal will throw more weight on a foot placed in a depression, and thus is more likely to be caught deeper on the foot and with a firmer grip. All surplus earth on the setting cloth not needed for covering the trap should be taken a good distance away and scattered evenly on the ground.
It is advisable always to wear gloves while setting traps and to use them for no other purpose than for trap setting. The coyote is a rabies carrier, but seldom dies of the disease. The last bulletin of the Control association said a number of cattle in the extreme southwest section of the State had died of rabies, presumably caused by coyote bites or scratches. Three persons who had come in contact with the animals were treated for rabies.
While Dr. Wilhite was connected with the Texas State Pasteur Institute, at Austin, he examined the brain of 40,000 coyotes, and said in each instance there were pronounced evidences of rabies.

A LITTLE FUN Jokes to Make You Laugh

By Degrees

"I hear ye're givin' up tobacco, Ezra."
"Well, Si, I'm sorta taperin' off. I don't swaller the juice no more."

Bovine Hoarding

The city-dweller was reading a newspaper when he was heard to exclaim, "Even the cows are doing it now!"
"Doing what?" inquired his wife.
"Hoarding," he replied. "Right here in the head-lines it says, 'Light native cow hides 7c.'"

Correcting an English Sentence

English Professor: "Correct this sentence: 'Before any damage could be done, the fire was put out by the volunteer fire department.'"
Student: "The fire was put out before any damage could be done by the volunteer fire department."

Orator—"And now, gentlemen, I wish to tax your memory."

Member of the Audience—"Good heavens! Has it come to that?"

Soul of Brevity

"Get the dope on this accident," said the editor to the cub reporter. "And when you write the story, remember that brevity is the soul of the newspaper. Never use two words where one will do. Now get going." The reporter handed in his copy: "Stapleton struck a match to see if there was any gasoline in the tank. Age 55."

His Joke Back-Fired

A traveling salesman was calling on a grocer when a poor woman came in begging.

"Ask the boss, there," the grocer, (a small man), said to her, pointing to the salesman by way of playing a joke on him.

"Here, boy," the salesman said to the grocer, "give this woman a dollar out of the till."

The grocer paid.

The Complete Casualty List

The telegraph editor of a Denver newspaper complained to a country correspondence who omitted names in his news stories. He wrote the man that if he neglected this essential detail in his next story he would be discharged.

A few days later the editor got his dispatch:

"Boulder, Colorado, May 26.—Severe storm passed over this section this afternoon and lightning struck a barbed-wire fence on the ranch of Henry Wilson, killing three cows—their names being Jessie, Bossie and Buttercup."

Pat's Failing

Pat, an inveterate drunkard, went to the priest and asked him what to do about it. "I'm afraid I'll have to put you on the pledge," the priest said, "but mind you, if you break the pledge, I'll turn ye into a rat."

It wasn't long, however, before Pat surrendered to Demon Rum, and arrived home drunk. He sat in dazed silence for a while, then he turned to his wife and said: "Maggie, if you see me gettin' smaller 'n' smaller, fer Gawd's sake keep yer eye on the cat."

Lucky to Get His Hat Back

The Rev. Moses Jackson was holding services in a small country church, and at the conclusion lent his hat to a member (as was the custom) to pass around for contributions. The newcomer canvassed the congregation thoroughly, but the hat was returned empty to its owner.

Bre'r Jackson looked into it, turned it upside down, and shook it vigorously, but not a copper cent was forthcoming. He sniffed disgustedly. "Brederen," he said, "I sho' is glad dat I got my hat back!"

Total Darkness

A traveling man went into a country hotel. There was a very dim lamp burning in the office. He remarked to one of the farmers seated in the office that the light was not very good. The farmer replied:

"By heck, you know that I think two lamps like that would make total darkness."

Venturesome Journalism

The office boy entered the sanctum of an editor and said: "Say, boss, there's a tramp outside who says he hasn't had anything to eat for six days."
"Bring him in," said the editor. "If we can find out how he does it we can run this paper for another week."

Rastus and Mandy Go Shopping

Rastus and his bride-to-be, Mandy, were on a shopping tour. When it came to a choice of bedroom suites the furniture man asked, "Do you want twin beds?"

Mandy looked at Rastus, then in an embarrassed voice said, "No, Ah thinks it am best to get ordinary bed 'n let de Lawd decide if its gwiner be twins."

Marry the Girl

If you don't feel just right,
If you can't sleep at night,
If you moon and sigh,
And your throat feels dry,
If you don't care to smoke,
If your food makes you choke,
If your heart doesn't beat,
If you're getting cold feet,
If your head's in a whirl—
Why not marry the girl?

His Answer

In Chicago, Tomaso Ricardo, Italian, was being examined as an applicant for citizenship papers.

"Can you tell me how many States there are in the Union?" the examining judge asked.

"Mister Judge," answered Ricardo, "I talka to you. You knowa your business. I knowa my business. You aska me how many States in Union. I aska you how many bananas in bunch?"

Astonished the Pastor

In the congregation was a young bride, whose husband was an usher. Becoming worried about having left the roast in the oven, she wrote a note to her husband, sending it to him by another usher.

The latter, thinking it was a note for the pastor, hurried down the aisle and laid it on the pulpit. Stopping abruptly in the middle of his sermon to read the note, the astonished pastor was met with this written injunction:

"Please go home and turn off the gas."

My husband says I feed all the cats in the neighborhood. You'll stay and have tea, won't you, Mrs. Gabb?"

Guaranteed Deposit

An old Indian, down in Oklahoma, hard up, went to the bank to borrow $100. The banker said it would be all right, provided he had some security. The deal finally was made, the Indian giving a mortgage on twenty ponies.

Not long after that, oil was struck close to the Indian's allotment, and he sold his oil lease for a lot of cash, so he stepped into the bank and peeled off a $100 bill to pay the loan.

"That's fine," remarked the banker, when the business was completed, "but you don't want to carry all that money around with you. Better leave it here with me."

"All right," replied the redskin, "how many ponies you got?"

Misplaced Charity

When the late Sir Thomas Lipton started in the grocery business in London he had very little capital and his store was small, though neat. He had only one assistant, a boy of 14, who was very poor. The lad was a good, industrious worker, and Sir Thomas was fond of him.

The boy wore one suit of clothes so long that it became quite shabby, and Lipton took his own last sovereign to get the boy a new suit. The next day Jimmie did not show up, and also failed to show up the day following.

Lipton went to the lad's home, and asked his mother why Jimmie had not appeared for work. "Oh, sir," said the woman, "Jimmie looked so fine and respectable in his new suit that I thought I would send him out to look for a better job."

BLACK CATTLE PASSING HANDS

Black cattle have almost disappeared from Jeff Davis county, Herefords supplanting them. Almost the last of the few remaining heads have been shipped from the Rockpile and X ranches, holdings of the Reynolds Cattle Company, which made those cattle famous. The shipment consisted of 27 carloads of Polled-Angus cows, heifer stuff and calves, sent to the Reynolds ranch in Shackelford county for pasture.

"We have had the black cattle on the ranches for about 20 years," Will Reynolds, head of the company, said recently. "They have not been altogether satisfactory. Herefords are taking their place. We have a few yearlings and male stuff, but they will be cleaned out in the not distant future."

GEESSE GOOD FARM HANDS

It is estimated there are about 25,000 geese on farms in Van Zandt county, raised mainly for the purpose of ridding the lands of Bermuda, Johnson and crab grasses. It seems the fowls have a liking for the succulent roots of these grasses, not molesting the cotton plant while feeding. The geese waddle down the rows leisurely, eating every shoot of grass as they go. C. C. Simmons, of Myrtle Springs, is credited as being the first farmer to use geese for this purpose. Other farmers followed his example. One farmer uses about 1200 geese a year in his field, which is kept clear of the obnoxious grasses that would otherwise choke out cotton.

NARROW ESCAPE

W. B. Scott, who ranches a few miles from Dublin, had a narrow escape when he was thrown from his horse and landed on the ground near a big rattlesnake. The snake struck, but missed him a few inches. Mr. Scott and his son killed the reptile, which measured four feet six inches and had 12 rattles.

RECORD CAKE IS BAKED

What is claimed to have been the largest cake ever baked in West Texas was served recently at Pecos. It weighed 218½ pounds. The cake was made at a cooking school held in that city by the Pecos Enterprise and the Leader Grocery Company.

YOU CAN SMOKE THEM STEADILY... BECAUSE THEY NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES... NEVER TIRE YOUR TASTE!

ALWAYS LOOK BOTH WAYS

Mrs. W. E. Gibbens of Electra failed to look in both directions when she attempted to cross Fort Worth and Denver railroad tracks. She had her eyes on a switch engine and did not see an approaching passenger train, which ripped both fenders off one side of her automobile as she turned her car to avert a head-on collision and ran down the tracks with the train. She was uninjured.

And thou mourn at the last, when thy flesh and thy body are consumed. Prov. 5:11.

ONE GALLON could hoist S.S. Leviathan 7¾ inches!

99 Million Foot-Pounds* per gallon

Imagine the work required to hoist the world's heaviest ship 7¾ inches in the air! Astounding as it may seem, a single gallon of the powerful, new H-C could do this colossal job if all its potential energy could be converted into useful work*. Equally astounding it is that this same powerful H-C performs so smoothly, so quietly—in your engine! Try the new H-C in your car for 30 days. Compare it with any other gas you ever used—for hill climbing—for quick acceleration—for long mileage. And remember, it sells at the price of regular gasoline.

Ask the Sinclair dealer for a folder which fully explains how one gallon of the new H-C could hoist the S. S. Leviathan 7¾ inches.

*Foot-Pound: The amount of work required to lift one pound one foot. Due to friction and other losses no machine yet built can convert into useful work all the potential energy in any gasoline. Friction alone steals millions of foot-pounds of work from every gallon of gasoline you buy. To keep friction loss in your engine at a minimum be sure to use either Sinclair Opaline or Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil.

Worms

The same methods of control that will prevent trouble from coccidiosis will also handle the worm problem. Extreme sanitation and raising chicks indoors will prevent much trouble from worms, especially if house is screened against flies, which may cause tape worm trouble. Allow ing chicks to run on contaminated ground will surely cause worm infestation. You may think I am a crank about raising chicks indoors and under sanitary conditions. I have heard much advice about raising chicks on clean ground. In actual practice, clean ground doesn't exist, except in a few isolated cases. It's much better to raise your chicks to be free from worms and coccidiosis rather than let them become infested and then try to cure them. Such diseases and infestations always leave their mark on the future health and ability of the chicken to produce. A chicken whose intestines have been infested with worms and coccidiosis during the growing period will never be as profitable as one not so troubled. If you raise the chicks indoors until they are nearly full grown, then turn them out on the ground, even if later they do become infested with worms, it does not seem to affect them so seriously. A growing chick can not stand up against worm and coccidiosis infestation successfully. A few worms in a mature pullet or hen do not seem to cause any serious damage.

Range Paralysis

One of the latest troubles among growing chicks is so-called range paralysis. No definite cure has been suggested. One form is caused by coccidiosis infestation, or may be the after effects. One form by some is considered hereditary. I do not know this to be a fact, I do know, however, that most forms of paralysis can be prevented by sanitary means and by raising chicks indoors or only upon clean and uncontaminated ground if such is available. The factors that help in preventing coccidiosis also help prevent paralysis. If you have any trouble with this write me for additional information.

TEXAS FARM REPORTS

There are less livestock on feed in Texas this summer than a year ago.

Bonny Best is the best yielding tomato in Texas, a series of experiments have shown. It has six strains, four of them outyielding 27 other varieties.

About 70 per cent of Burnet county farmers repaired their terraces last winter, and many are building pasture terraces.

Farmers in the Balmorhea section are experimenting with tomatoes. If it is found they can be grown profitably in that section, a canning plant will be established.

About 500 acres of beans and 800 acres of roasting ears are being grown in Brazoria county for co-operative marketing through the Sweeney Truck Growers' Association.

Truck growers of Donley county have agreed to plant between 800 and 1,000 acres of one variety of cantaloupes. By so doing they hope to produce a uniform product and secure a more stable price.

The Angleton experiment station has transplanted a number of fig cuttings from California, making the fig collection of that station to cover about all the varieties available in the United States.

Thirty-eight crates, containing 7,600 turkey eggs, valued at $1,064, were shipped recently from Brady by the Brady Co-operative Poultry Producers' Association. It is hoped to sell approximately $50,000 worth of turkey eggs on Eastern markets this spring.

Mike C. Boyd of near Ballinger expects one of the biggest dewberry crops in the history of his farm, and has installed canning machinery for the berries and other truck garden products. The cannery will be able to handle 2,500 gallons of berries a day.

More than 2,330 carloads of vegetables were shipped up to May 15th from Laredo, the largest movement in several years. Bermuda onions shipped totaled 1,350 cars. More than 200 cars of carrots were sent out, besides 19 cars of beets.

About 200 boys are expected to attend a summer camp for Future Farmers and Future Ranchers of America near Mertzon, which will open July 30. Vocational agriculture teachers of the Edwards Plateau region picked the site.

S. E. Wolff, botanist at the Temple experiment station, has layered a number of yaupon seeds which are expected to germinate next spring. The yaupon is one of the finest ornamental plants in Texas, but the propagation has been slow due to the necessity of layering the seed for a year in order to receive germination.

While farmers on the north side of the Rio Grande are being paid to reduce cotton acreage, growers on the Mexican side of the river put in a record crop of about 50,000 acres.

A production of 901,000 bushels of tomatoes from 10,600 acres in the lower Rio Grande Valley, is forecast by the government. Last year's production was 1,022,000 bushels on 14,000 acres.

It is estimated there will be more than 20,000 home gardens on about 4,000 acres in Texas this year. There will be over 200 large community gardens, embracing more than 2,000 acres.

Watermelon and cantaloupe growers in Bastrop county lost many plants this spring by a bug that attacked the stems of the vines. The best remedy was to bank the earth high around the stems.

Green shinners are killing cattle in the sand country west of Midland. Some cattle die nearly every year from shinners poisoning, but generally losses are kept down by turning the livestock out of pastures when the scrub oaks first begin leafing.

No cures have yet been found for trees infected with the Dutch elm disease. The only thing to do with an infected tree is to cut it down, dig up the stump and burn the whole tree, including roots and branches. This must be done to protect nearby healthy trees.

Friendship community, in Houston county, was the first in Texas to apply for a settlement of farm families on relief rolls in its community and for the building of a rural work center as outlined by the Texas Relief Commission.

Grass not only prevents erosion, but well managed grazing land loses less fertility because less is taken from the soil by pasture plants, and part of that removed is restored directly through the manure of grazing animals. Decaying grass roots keep the soil porous and favorable to the absorption of moisture.

Farmers have found that grasshoppers, the chinch bug and the Hessian fly, most serious insect pests in the grain producing sections, came through the winter in great numbers, due to open season.

An Lee Poe of Oldham county is credited with exhibiting the largest and heaviest 4-H club litter of pigs in Texas. The 13 Duroc Jerseys, shown at Amarillo, weighed 3,020 pounds at six months.

Horses that work hard all day do better pastured at night than if kept in a stall; it gives them a chance to get some succulent food, take a good roll and rest in the cool air.

Fort Bend county sheep raisers have organized to grade, classify and pool their wool for market this season. Eighteen men have promised to turn more than 15,000 pounds to the pool.

Renewed efforts are being made by agriculturists to find a substitute for lead arsenate and other poisonous spray materials used to protect fruit and vegetables from insects. Many sprays leave a residue which present a definite health hazard.

Three college scholarships, valued at $300 and $250, awarded by the Texas Home Demonstration Association and the State Fair of Texas, were won by the following three farm girls: Miss Lillie Henrichs of Wharton, Miss Winifred of Lancaster and Miss Alma Lewis of Kosse Falls. These girls carried on demonstrations in gardening, poultry, food preservation, clothing and home improvements.

The spring (March to June) movement of cattle from Texas will be a little larger than last year, when 628,000 cattle and calves were shipped. This year's shipments are expected to carry less steers than last spring, with an increase in cows, and about the same proportion of calves and heifers. Shipments last fall were the smallest in years, which resulted in much heavier movements in January and February this year.

J. H. Gonzales of Jim Hogg county harvested 465 bushels of sweet potatoes from 1 1/2 acres, which he sold for 50 cents a bushel. The several hundred pounds of culls he fed to pigs.

Poultry raisers have been warned against carbon monoxide gas from brooder stoves. Provide sufficient ventilation or so fumes will escape through pipes leading to the outside.

Grasshoppers infesting fields in Texas and Middle West States this year will serve as experimental insects in a limited way for entomologists of the United States Department of Agriculture in testing a new poisoned bait. It is prepared by substituting oil for molasses and water, which are mixed with bran and arsenic, to make the bait now used. If the new bait proves as effective in killing hoppers in laboratory tests as in field tests, it will have several advantages over the former remedy. Oil baits do not deteriorate during storage as rapidly as molasses baits, which will ferment, mold and cake. Furthermore, it is believed only half as much oil bait, by weight, is needed. The oil bait remains moist and flakey for several days, retaining most of its flavor. Even the youngest hoppers can chew up the soft flakes.

Cochran county farmers are seeking to raise the largest and finest turkeys in the world by carrying on demonstrations for that purpose.

SINCLAIR DEALERS STAMPEDE OIL BOOTLEGGERS!

Some authorities state that 25% of all motor oil sold in America is "bootleg"—cheap, inferior oil masquerading as some famous brand!

To protect you against oil bootleggers Sinclair Dealers now sell Sinclair Motor Oils in sealed 1-quart and 5-quart Tamper-Proof cans—at no extra price!

These cans are filled at Sinclair refineries with Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil and Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil. The Sinclair Dealer opens the can before your eyes—with a patented can opener which wrecks the can beyond further use.

Sinclair canned motor oils mean full measure and a clean, pure oil. Buy your motor oil in Tamper-Proof cans.

A PUZZLE IN PICTURES

There may be plenty of things wrong with this car, but there are even more flaws in the picture. The artist has made at least twenty mistakes. See if you can find them.

DEAR FRIENDS:

What a busy time of the year this is! So many things to be done, so many lovely things to see, the woods, the birds and the flowers. But with it all what an unusual spring it has been. One day we suffered from the heat and the next a north wind would chill us.

As I sit here writing to you, a north wind is howling and growling, snapping at the lovely blooms, twisting and bending the trees. The smooth green leaves frayed, look almost tired before they have attained their growth. Sometimes I think Aunt Susan was right when she said the world is very old and tired; and then, too, with John, the great disciple, "look for a new heaven and a new earth, whereon dwell righteousness." Some folks don't want the second coming of Christ to occur too soon. It can not come too soon for me. There are so many things we will not have to suffer in that other world, I long for the day. I am just trying to be ready. ARE YOU?

I am going to answer the many inquiries concerning my mother. She is still in bed, but we are hopeful for many years of useful life for her. My mother is very brave in her affliction. She sends greetings and love to all members of the Sunshine Club. I want to thank all of you again for the messages of love and sympathy.

Now, boys and girls (young and old), how about the contest we started last month? Are you working as hard as you should to secure new members? There are five desirable prizes, the first being $2. Couldn't you use $2, as well as help the club secure more members? Get them to pledge themselves to be ACTIVE, SIGN their name and address on a slip of paper and send it to me. They should be postmarked not later than July 10. Be sure to put your name and address at the top of the page. Here is an opportunity to win a nice prize, besides helping the great work among the Shut-Ins. Are you willing?

Lots of love to all my friends,
(Signed) AUNT MARY,
Route 5, Box 179-B, Fort Worth, Texas.

SUNSHINE CLUB NEWS

Almost half of 1934 is gone, and so much work yet to be done. So many hearts are hungry for a kind word. Many are the eager eyes that scan a passing face for a friendly smile. How cheap comparatively are the best things of earth; how easy to give, but we keep them to ourselves. Not intentionally, perhaps, but because we DO NOT THINK. Those are the three saddest, the most careless words in life.

Here are a few letters from those who are thinking and doing for others much of the time. Read them, and see the greatness of spirit shining through the lines.

Devan James, Bronte, Texas, writes: "I have been awful sick for about two weeks; lots of fever, but I am better now. We have all the crops planted and a right pretty garden. I wrote your mother, and I hope she is better by now. I pray every day that she and all the other Shut-Ins will get well and enjoy life. My case is hopeless, but some day when I get to the home where my Blessed Redeemer is, I will be well, and I can walk and praise Jesus then. There won't be any more pain or heartache or sorrow there. Everybody will be happy. I am going to a big Mother's Day program and sing, 'Will the Circle be Unbroken?' if I am able. Also say a piece about mothers, too. Thank God, I have my good mother and dad. I don't know what I would do without them, they are so jolly and good and kind to me, teaching me to love Jesus and pray every day. I still enjoy getting the nice letters, and I never fail to answer any that I receive. I write to a new Shut-In each month. I have received letters from twelve persons now. Aunt Susan sent me a scrap book the other day with 'The Life of Our Lord,' by Charles Dickens. I sure do enjoy it. She is surely good. I wish I might see every one who has written. Thank you for putting Winnie Mills on the list. Haven't seen her to know if she has gotten a letter or not. She was so anxious to get a letter of her own. Wish you lots of blessings from God and love from me."

Devan had a birthday in May. We hope he had an enjoyable day.

Maria Artus, Poth, Texas, writes: "Have just finished reading the Boys' and Girls' page. Am sorry about your dear mother. Hope she will soon be well. I like to read the letters of the members. Some are very interesting and instructive. This world still has many sweet Christian people living in it, and that is what makes it a nice place to live in. I think the work of sending sunshine to others is great. Much more so when the Shut-Ins send back a word to you. God bless you all."

Margreath Wallis, Stroud, Okla., says: "I am doing fine so far, I guess. It has been a long time since I have heard from you. I do not get the Boys' and Girls' page any more. I get so lonesome to hear about everybody in the club. I miss the paper so much, but it is not possible for us to take it at this time. I would love to hear from my sunshine friends again."

Mrs. J. F. Dillard, Bigfoot, Texas, says she and her aged husband are living alone. They are getting along as well as possible. Mrs. Dillard pieces quilts when friends send her scraps. Days are lonely when she doesn't have something to do. She sends love and best wishes to the club.

Jean Cadwallader, Kaufman, Texas, is a new member. We are happy to have her with us, and hope she will enjoy the club. Get into the contest for new members, Jean. Perhaps you will win one of the prizes.

Mrs. Sallie Martin, Troup, Texas, writes that she has been quite ill, has been in bed for some time, but is patient and sweet with all her suffering. Members of the household write for Mrs. Martin as she is not able to do it herself. Her grandson, Leon, does most of the writing. He is a fine young man, one I am proud to know.

Last but not least, I am saving a letter from none other than our dearly beloved Aunt Susan Hughes, Galveston, Texas, who says: "Wish you could see our island in all its flowering glory. April rained so much this year that the flowers are just out-doing themselves. Old Miss April went back and just gave us November's chilly, rainy days, never gave us one shower with a rainbow afterwards. May was kinder. On Mother's Day Iris (Greek goddess of the rainbow) crowned Treasure Island with her loveliest rainbows. The beautiful bowed banner spanned the city from the Gulf to the bay. How typical of a Mother's life with shine, shade and rain, then the climax at the close, the beautiful rainbow in the late afternoon. Sunshine, clouds and rain filled the day, like a mother's life with joy, sorrow and tears. I have been under the weather, wrenched my broken leg, and was on a crutch eight days. Thank the Lord I did not break it. God bless you and give you more grace as the days go by. He has given you wisdom, dearest, and an understanding heart to see the needs of your Shut-Ins. I shall write to your mother tomorrow. Love to you and all the dear members of the club." Words of mine could never equal those of Susan. She is to me a precious vessel chosen.

Club Membership

Are YOU a member of this club? If you are not, we want you to join at once. This is a special invitation to join us without delay. There are no dues now or at any time. All that is required is to send sunshine to Shut-Ins who need cherry letters, cards, verses, clippings from magazines, newspapers, etc. Fill in the membership coupon below and mail at once, before you forget it, to Aunt Mary, Route 5, Box 179-B, Fort Worth, Texas.

In Memoriam

It is with a sad heart I tell the members of the club about the death of one of our most beloved Shut-Ins:

Mrs. Emma K. Rothermel, Bay Minette, Ala.

Aunt Emma, as she was known to us, was a true Christian. She had been a Shut-In for a number of years, suffering much pain. But her beautiful spirit rose above it all. She endeavored each day to spread sunshine and happiness with cherry words through her pen. We will miss Aunt Emma every day, every month. But we are happy to know that some day we shall meet her in God's Glory Garden, as she often spoke of Paradise. Often she wrote me that she longed to go to that home above where many of her dear friends had gone. She once said: "I long to walk and talk with Jesus." We shall miss her, but if we could (which we can't), we would not call her back from such a glorious place into a world of pain and sorrow. "Rest on, dear soul, and take thy rest. We shall ever strive to meet thee in that Great Day when all of us shall know as we are known."

We will not pass the opportunity of failing to add a word of tribute to Aunt Emma's daughter, Miss Mildred Rothermel. She was always faithful, kind and true. We know she will miss her darling mother. We send her our deepest love and greatest sympathy. We are sure it is a great comfort to know that she did everything possible to make her mother's days on earth as happy as possible. Such sons and daughters deserve the confidence and love of the world. Giving of one's life to someone that is afflicted is an act of love and sacrifice. God give us more such men and women.

In "Adventures in the South Seas" (Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, Calif.) by Charles H. Watson, the boy or girl who follows the daring lives of the missionary, will have adventure and inspiration to do the big and noble things in life. It is a tale of heroism, of endurance even unto death, of courage born of the spirit, stirring the heart in a most unusual way.

"I Went to Pit College," by Lauren Gilfillan (Viking Press), is an auto-biographical record of a young girl who went to investigate the living conditions of the striking coal miners in Pennsylvania. Her experiences while living among those people will do much to inspire our young people to bigger and better lives, making them concerned less with "self" and more for others.
